

RED CROSS READY FOR ROLL CALL; WORKERS MEET

Inspiring Addresses Made At Gathering in Doylestown
Country Club

NEARLY 200 ATTEND

Work Which Organization Is Doing in Peace Times
Is Explained

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 9.—The Bucks County Branch of the Southeastern Chapter American Red Cross held a meeting of its roll call chairmen and workers here yesterday. The attendance was close to 200 men and women with the latter predominating. They came from all sections of Bucks County to get inspiration and enthusiasm and also instruction for the annual campaign for membership.

The meeting was preceded by a luncheon which was served in the Doylestown Country Club.

Following the luncheon those assembled were called to order by Mrs. William R. Mercer, chairman of the Bucks County unit. Mrs. Mercer's opening remarks were brief and she then presented the speaker of the afternoon, Edward Singleton, Area Director, Disaster Relief.

Mr. Singleton was a forcible speaker and told of the origin of the Red Cross organization and sketched its progress until the present time when it is represented in 53 nations of the world. "All that the American Red Cross is doing is due to you," he told those assembled. "Think of it today not as a war emergency but as a peace time organization."

The speaker proceeded to review some of the work which the Red Cross is doing in these times of peace. "There are 25,000 veterans on hospital beds, today who have to be cared for; 70,000 families whose boys have gone west. The war today is just as real to them as it was back in 1917 and 1918."

The work which is being done by the great army of nurses who are carrying on a campaign of health and home hygiene instruction was explained as was also the efforts in teaching first-aid for swimmers so as to make the waters of America safe for the swimmers.

The work which the Red Cross does in disaster relief was thoroughly gone into by Mr. Singleton.

"It is an almost universal belief that disasters are something unusual, not to be expected and to be considered only from that angle, and, therefore, not requiring consideration from a national viewpoint.

"The chart and record of the rising curve of disasters in which the American Red Cross has been called upon to act in the past twenty-four years and five months proves the incorrectness of such a belief.

"In these twenty-four years and five months the American National Red Cross functioned in 666 domestic disasters, of which 16% were in the first 15 years, and 84% in the last 9 years and five months ending December 1, 1928.

"In detail, the figures for 5 year periods are:

In the 10 years ending June 30, 1914, in 39 disasters;

In the 5 years ending June 30, 1919, in 67 disasters;

In the 5 years ending June 30, 1924, in 271 disasters;

In the 4 years and five months ending December 1, 1928, in 285 disasters.

"The startling increase is a logical result of the increase in demands upon (Continued on Page Four)

FIGURES INDICATE THE PROGRESS OF AVIATION

Curtiss Flying Service Statistics Give Much Information

MAP WITH PLANES

By Homer H. Metz

I. N. S. Aviation Editor
NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The question heard so often of late, "Is Aviation Really making solid progress throughout the United States?" is answered in part by a set of statistics issued recently by the Curtiss Flying Service.

The Curtiss organization operates extensively in virtually all sections of the country and its statistics can be more or less taken as a legitimate analysis of the aviation industry in general.

Perhaps the most prominent of all features of the Curtiss report is the announcement that Curtiss operated planes during the month of August carried 20,117 passengers a distance equal to 89 per cent of the total number of miles flown by all air mail planes in the United States during the same period without a single fatality.

What Statistics Show
In issuing the statistics Charles S. (Casey) Jones, president of the company, declared:

"These figures indicate more clearly than any general statements the enormous progress made in commercial aviation throughout the United States during 1929."

At the same time Curtiss transport planes were making their remarkable record of safety, the report reveals, 1,000 student flyers were in training at various Curtiss bases. They were credited with more than 5,000 flying hours, both dual and solo, likewise without a single fatality.

Another interesting feature is contained in the following excerpt from the report:

"Since passenger miles are the accepted standard for railroad statistics, the results of a recent experiment within our own company are also interesting. To reach the special meet-

CHICAGO OPTIMISTIC DESPITE CUBS' DEFEAT

Thousands Return for Second
Day of The World Series

RALLY FOR CONTEST

By Davis J. Walsh
I. N. S. Sports Editor

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—It may have been the morning after yesterday, to some people, but Chicago, rallying overnight from the disturbing defeat of its Cubs in the first game of the World Series, saw it only as the morning before this afternoon. This, in other words, was to be another day, bringing with it another game between the Cubs and the Philadelphia Athletics, and the town was ready to forget the mistakes of the past in its hope of the immediate future.

It consumed a lot of poison yesterday while the Athletics were getting home with what might be termed a No. 5 iron in the person of Howard Ehmke but today its head was high, its eye was clear and its heart was whole again. In brief, Chicago had only a mild hangover to show for its distressing debauch.

That was how the town figured it, anyhow. There were six games yet to be held and most of the loyal citizens still felt that the series would have to be played on a basis of seven-or-no-count.

In consequence, the same thousands who watched the gates stay closed on Monday night were back again for more watching last night and there wasn't a single kick-back reported from the 55,000 odd who held reserved seats. Another capacity crowd of 51,000 therefore, will be back in there very resolutely and ruggedly when they ring the bell for the second game of the great series at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, provided the man in charge of the weather does right by little Nellie. At last reports, he was speaking in a very threatening manner about showers late today.

FAMILY FLEES FIRE IN SCANTY ATTIRE AT MILL ST. BLAZE

Basement of Alfred Tomesani's Store Considerably
Damaged Early Today

FIREMEN ARE PRAISED

Excellent Work Done by Consolidated Department Kept Damage Down

A small inter-communicating telephone system, installed in his Mill street business establishment by Alfred Tomesani, was the means of warning him of a fire in his store early this morning.

Awakened at about 12:25 o'clock by the ringing of the bell of the small system, Mr. Tomesani smelled smoke, and making his way to the store beneath his living quarters at 322 Mill street, found tongues of flames seeping through the holes in the flooring around pipes leading to the radiators.

Mr. Tomesani at once pressed a fire extinguisher into use but was unable to make his way into the basement as dense volumes of smoke rushed out as he opened the cellar door.

Then, thinking of his wife, child and aged father who were on the third floor, he rushed to their assistance. The family by this time were suffering from smoke which had filled the entire building and they were seeking means of exit. Mr. Tomesani guided them to the fourth floor where they went through a window onto a small flat roof of the property of L. B. Gorton, adjoining.

Mr. Tomesani's father yesterday sprained his ankle and he was barely able to walk, having to be carried most of the way on the back of his son.

Mrs. Esther Brunner, residing in the property adjoining the Tomesani place, on the opposite side, telephoned to the Consolidated Fire Department, which quickly responded and did excellent work.

Residents in the vicinity this morning were loud in their praise of the work done by the firemen. When the firemen arrived the entire basement was ablaze and the joists were burning beneath the first floor. The fuse box of the electric system had been burned away and all lights extinguished. The inter-communicating telephone system was short circuited and was ringing, and due to this ringing Mr. Tomesani had been aroused and thus discovered the fire.

The firemen at once covered the stock with tarpaulins and concentrated their efforts in fighting the flames in the basement. They were quickly and efficiently extinguished before they had an opportunity to burn through the first floor.

Mr. Tomesani and his family, after making their way through the window on the fourth floor on the Gorton roof, were assisted from the roof down ladders by the firemen. They had to leave the building in their night clothes.

It is believed that an over-heated furnace was the cause of the fire.

The flames were burning so fiercely and the smoke had become so dense that it filtered through the partitions of four adjoining properties occupied by L. B. Gorton, Mrs. Esther Brunner, Strutte Inn and the store of Alfred Obrecht. All of these properties were well filled with smoke.

It is conceded today that had the fire been discovered a trifle later, and had the firemen not fought it in the efficient manner in which they did, that much more damage would have been done not only to the Tomesani property but those adjoining as well.

Chief McGee today estimated the damage at $2,000 to stock and fixtures in the basement, and $1,500 to the property.

A device known as the Baker cellar pipe, which is part of the modern equipment of the Consolidated Fire Department, and which was at once put into service by Chief McGee, played a big part in conquering the blaze. After the firemen had located the blaze a small hole was cut through the first floor just inside the entrance, and the cellar pipe injected. Lines of hose were attached to the pipe and the water turned on. This pipe sprays all surfaces, and the water shot out of it into all directions, drenching burning joists, side walls and floors.

Room Is Now Available For More First Graders

Due to the overcrowded condition of the first grade in the Harriman school building it became necessary to open another room to provide for the pupils of that grade. Due to the additional room available there is now room for a few more students living in the Harriman section who will be six years of age on or before the first of December.

Parents who have children conforming to the age limit and wishing to enroll them should do so at once. A permit from a member of the school board will be required for admission.

Wednesday, October 16th, has been set apart for the teachers to visit other school districts. On that date the schools will be closed for the entire day.

Welcome the Fire Inspector

The fire inspector is becoming increasingly popular with factory executives. The importance of his service and its advantages to them are understood, appreciated and welcomed today more than ever before. Progressive business concerns recognize that it is better and cheaper to follow the inspector's advice than to run the chance of remaining exposed to fire.

In addition to the appalling loss of life and property damage in industrial fires, tremendous financial investments and large amounts of credit are involved. Interruption of business operations, values irretrievably lost, and time wasted—all these are factors which the modern executive must consider in relation to the economic phases of his business.

Harassed by the possibility of fire and what it means beyond the mere limits of insured property, many executives have found it expedient to invite the fire inspector to submit a report on the condition of their plants. Others have accepted the service of a fire prevention engineer, who makes a complete survey, submits recommendations for safety improvements, offers valuable suggestions and cooperates in many ways. This service is furnished without cost by fire insurance companies.

With these advantages at the disposal of executives, the fire losses are being materially reduced. Modern factory buildings are being constructed in strict accordance with fire prevention regulations and many old buildings are being reconstructed. Properly constructed buildings improve the safety, the working atmosphere and the morale of employees, thereby increasing their efficiency and their ability for greater production.

Fire Prevention Week, October 6th to 12th, proclaimed by the President of the United States for national observance, affords an opportunity to all residents of Bristol and vicinity, to clear all premises of fire hazards and to aid in the reduction of fire in this community.

INCENTIVE

Necessity is not only the mother of invention, but the developer of muscle, health and athletic prowess. Often it is the weak, sickly fellow who becomes the crack athlete, the Olympian wonder.

Coaches, speaking out of wide knowledge, give great encouragement to the fellow who is conscious of being outpointed in every direction by rivals who are as big and as strong as an ox. They have seen undersized youngsters come to the front in every department of sport.

The undersized, underweight boy goes at the game of athletics with a will, and finds that the secret of strength lies in the ability of muscles to respond, and to cover the frame, big or little, with a multitude of wires of steel that can be used for tasks more formidable than their possessor ever dreamed of before he began his training.

The wide interest of youth in all forms of athletic endeavor is the secret of the decline in the number of pulmonary complaints, and is, as well, a hopeful sign for the decline of the maladies of the middle-aged. If the one-time well-developed athlete would keep up his exercises instead of getting soft and fleshy, he would find that the health he acquired along with strength would serve him well later in life.

Football is a dangerous game each season witnessing a number of fatalities and many broken bones—but it more than compensates for these by turning out thousands of strong, healthy boys.

ART IN BUSINESS

Illustration and the uses to which it is now put are not at all the same as some years ago. Then a stigma attached to commercial art, Howard Pyle or Edward Penfield had permitted drawings of theirs to be used for advertising purposes, they would have appeared anonymously. The illustration work they did was for books and magazines.

Charles Dana Gibson, J. C. Leyendecker and others of the old school are remembered for their magazine and book illustrations. Coles Phillips was of the modern school and probably more than any one else made commercial art respectable.

Conditions for the young artist today who wants to be an illustrator are not favorable unless he is willing to cultivate the gods of trade. The constantly increasing cost of book production has resulted in cutting down the pictorialization of the scenes in fiction. This arrangement suits many authors, for they are often dissatisfied with the representation of their darlings. The reader, too, is probably as well pleased, for frequently he patterns a character on some one he loves or hates, and destroys his image to see a different representation.

The result of this revolution in illustrating is that much of the best work is now found in advertising, and the art is largely dependent upon advertising for patronage.

LIVE where you work

Many people employed in Bristol are commuting to and from their work each day. This means an unnecessary expense and a waste of time. They must leave home earlier and return later than if they lived in the town where they are employed. They have less time for pleasure and less time to spend with their families than if they resided here.

Why commute?

Bristol as a place of residence offers every opportunity to be found in a large city. There are paved streets, sanitary sewers, good schools and churches of every denomination; periodic collection of ashes and garbage, police protection and ample space for outdoor recreation.

Housing is adequate

Housing facilities are adequate to meet the needs of all. There are dwellings here which will meet the needs of almost every family. Big six room houses with all modern conveniences including front porches and rear yards. They rent as low as $25 per month, and are comparable in type to those in the larger cities renting for nearly twice the amount.

You're a part of the community

If you live in Bristol you are a part of the community. You are not lost in the crowds of a great city where often times your next door neighbor doesn't know you. Live in Bristol and participate in its affairs and you will find life much more worth the living.

This novel is based on the Warner Bros. & Vitaphone Natural Color Picture. Adapted from Avery Hopwood's play, "The Gold Diggers."

SYNOPSIS

Eleanor and Topsy, chorus girls, are discussing their various methods of gold-digging with Jerry, Mabel, and Violet, members of the same show, when Violet's fiancé, Wally, is announced. Her interest lies in Wally, who has asked her to marry him. Wally comes in with the bad news that his uncle will not consent to the marriage, and without his consent, he loses a fortune. Jerry promises to help her by seeing Uncle Steve alone. She plans to pretend she is a scheming woman so that Uncle Steve will be happy to have someone else marry Wally—and that someone else is to be Violet, of course.

"I'll get one of the girls to lend me her mouse, and then I'll dig him and dig him until he cries for help," Jerry said.

Mabel remembered a necklace which would look exceptionally well with the bracelets and went for that. When Jerry was as dressed up as she could be for the moment, she looked at herself approvingly in the mirror.

"There—don't I look rich and careless? I'll have ruined men pined six deep all around me."

"Go to it, girlie," Mabel advised. "If there's a sight I really enjoy, it's to see any woman put anything over on any man. While I'm on the subject, you might throw me

"I knew you had a big, generous heart if you could only be touched"

Uncle Steve's body when you get through with it—or the lawyer—or something."

"Sure. In fact, you can have them both. That ought to show the kind of a pal I am. And now, you three, get ready to run when that door bell rings. He must be having a hot and heavy conference with that lawyer of his, to be gone all this time. Well, we needed the time too, and I certainly don't begrudge it to Uncle Steve."

"He'll need more than time," predicted Mabel, going into the bedroom to refresh her face with new powder and rouge.

When the door bell rang, Violet and Wally hurried into the dining room, and Jerry called to Mabel to stay where she was. To establish the proper setting, she seated herself at the piano and began playing a jazzy song with suggestive words and a snappy melody. Even when she had heard Sadie coming in with the gentlemen, she continued to play and sing in order to arouse Uncle Steve's sense of decency and good taste. She finished the song and turned around, obviously surprised to see them standing there.

"Oh, hello, boys," she greeted them. "I was just playing a hot little number and didn't hear you come in."

She could not help noticing that Steve was really handsome, even more so than she had thought at first. His lawyer too was a dignified looking gentleman, but rather inclined to obesity.

"Miss Lamar, this is Mr. Blake, our family lawyer," Uncle Steve introduced them.

"Good morning, Judge," Jerry piped in a high falsetto.

Blake replied with a most austere bow-do-you-do. He, as well as Stephen, was doubtless outside of his element, and Jerry's uncalculated familiarity was making him rather uncomfortable.

"So you're Mister 'Bad News' himself, the mug who's trying to help take my beautiful Wally away from me," Jerry declared. "Well, I want to tell you here and now that you can't do it, and Mr. Lee can't do it, and . . ."

"I know, I know," Lee protested. "Now please listen. Blake and I have talked things over. He has persuaded me that it would be advisable to postpone my decision about Wally and you. He thinks I should get to know you better before giving you my final answer. Is that fair enough?"

Jerry shook his hand gratefully.

Blake's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brown, of Philadelphia.

If you should lift the body of every car in Buick's field—and compare the chassis—then you too would choose The New BUICK

If you were to lift the body from the chassis of any one of a hundred cars—and compare the vitally important details of chassis design and construction—you would find Buick so outstandingly superior in all phases of fine car engineering that you would almost inevitably make Buick your choice. Here is what you would see in this famous chassis:

Buick's great new Valve-in-Head engine—developing 99 horsepower in the 124- and 132-inch models, and 80½ horsepower in the 118-inch models. Unapproached in sturdiness, all-round performance—ability, reliability and economy as well.

Buick's new Controlled Servo Enclosed Mechanical Brakes—providing smooth, positive, silent braking, with minimum pedal pressure. And—because fully protected against dust, dirt and water—operating at maximum efficiency in any weather.

Buick's new frictionless steering gear and new Road Shock Eliminator—twin advancements introduced by Buick. The Buick wheel offering effortless control throughout its entire turning range—and the new Road Shock Eliminator assuring complete freedom from annoying jolts and jars.

Buick's new, longer rear springs, and new

Lovejoy Duodraulic Shock Absorbers—front and rear. Combining to check both bound and rebound, and providing a degree of riding ease without parallel anywhere. And, finally, such established Buick superiorities as the famous double-drop frame of toughest steel... the massive side and cross members reinforced at points of stress to insure greatest long life... the celebrated torque tube drive, Buick multiple-disc clutch, self-lubricating differential, and numerous other features.

When the list of Buick's chassis features—entirely aside from the irresistible appeal of Buick's new Fisher Bodies—reads like a roll-call of all that is soundest and best in fine car engineering... and when, in addition, you can buy a Buick for as little as $1225, f. o. b. factory... what wonder that all comparisons lead to Buick! What wonder that more than 2,000,000 people have invested their money in Buicks—and that from two to five times as many are purchasing this new Buick as any other automobile priced above $1200!

Chicago Optimistic
Despite Cubs' Defeat

smart money granted Chicago its right to be loyal optimistic and then proceeded to lay itself down on what it deemed to be the prospective winner. There was no doubt that the Athletics enjoyed both a practical and tactical advantage as a result of Connie Mack's master strategy. In the first game and today you could get 8 to 5 for your money if you still liked the Cubs. Some of the more sanguine souls, in fact, were of the opinion that everybody would be out of the trenches and into the bath by Saturday night and there was a story that was not without logic, that the Athletics had paid off on one of the greatest gambles ever taken by a baseball manager. Thirteen Cubs were fanned—Hornsby, Wilson and Cutler twice each—for a World Series record and the Cubs never would have scored at all except for "Ike's" wild throw in the ninth inning. Grove wasn't seen except as a warm up pitcher. Earnshaw didn't even appear above the level of the dug out. The Athletics, in effect, had won the ball game without disclosing the real strength of their hand.

Having done that much, perhaps the astute Mr. Mack will pitch Ira Thomas in the second game today. I am aware that Ira Thomas no longer is even a good catcher but, as long as guile is being practiced in a big way around here, it mightn't be a bad idea to find out just how far one can go in that direction.

Figures Indicate The Progress of Aviation

ing of the local managers of the Curtiss Flying Service in Buffalo on August 26, a number of our leading directors and officers were transported in a new eighteen passenger plane.

A Big Trip

"In order to enable these men, all of whom had pressing business demands, to attend the Buffalo meeting and also the Cleveland Air Races and return to New York promptly, the plane's trip alone represented approximately 21,600 passenger miles. It was the first time that practically the entire executive personnel of a company had been transferred from one city to another in one plane in record time for a definite business purpose. The flight from New York to Buffalo took exactly two hours and fifty-nine minutes."

Still another fact of major interest in the report is that during August Curtiss operated planes engaged in mapping out by photography 7,357 square miles of the Mississippi Valley flood district for the Engineering Division of the United States War Department.

Red Cross Ready for Roll
Call Workers Meet

The Red Cross and the increase in population centers and standing improvements in the country, of which increase nature's upheavals or fire or pestilence take their toll.

"The Mississippi Valley Flood, the greatest disaster this country has ever experienced, had it occurred a century and a half ago would have been simply an overflow. This illustrates the point and the figures prove the fact that as our country increases in population and standing improvements disasters will increase, not decrease.

"Disaster relief, if it comes with the emergency period in great disasters such as the Florida-Porto Rico-Virgin Islands Hurricane, the Mississippi Valley Flood and the Florida Hurricane of 1926, would have left over one million people in part or totally unable to be of the same economic value to the country as before the disaster.

"This was prevented by the reconstruction work based solely on the basis of need, not loss, of the individual, from contributions by the American people voluntarily given for that purpose, supplemented by appropriations from National Red Cross funds.

FIVE YEARS OF SUFFERING ENDED
BY NEW KONJOLA

Modern Medicine Scores Another Glorious Victory; Triumphs Over Stubborn Complication

MR. JOHN LEDERER
"No one can imagine the suffering I had to bear for the last five years," said Mr. John Lederer, Steinsburg, Penna. "I suffered from stomach and kidney troubles. No food agreed with me. Gas formed on my stomach, my heart palpitated, and I became short of breath. My stomach bloated and my breath was bad. My kidneys caused more misery and I had to get up 10 or 12 times every night."

"Well, I am surely glad that I gave Konjola a trial. At last I am free from pain and misery. My stomach is in a fine condition. I eat what I want, secure in the knowledge that it will digest as it should, and not cause suffering. My kidneys have been corrected, and never cause me the slightest discomfort. Konjola surely is a marvelous compound."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)
